Q1. Hello, may I please speak with [FIRSTNAME_1 LASTNAME_1]?

(Hello, my name is [IWER NAME] and) I am calling from the Survey Research Center at the University of Michigan. I am calling because we recently sent you an invitation to participate in [NEW TA: a study on young people in the United States. This study is done by the same people who do the Family Economics Study that your family participates in, and the Child Development Study in which you have participated in the past.

Specifically, we would like to learn more about the experiences of young people as they move into adulthood, what becoming an adult means today, and what influences young peoples' decisions. There are questions about schooling, job training, work, and family, but just as important are questions about your goals, expectations, and dreams for the future. / 2005/2007 TA: the Transition to Adulthood study, in which you have participated in the past.
- IF NECESSARY: The study is about the experiences of young people as they move into adulthood. There are questions about schooling, job training, work and family, but just as important are questions about your goals, expectations, and dreams for the future.]

RECORDEDIW_CONSENT. Before I begin, I want you to know that this interview is completely voluntary. If we should come to any questions you don't want to answer, just let me know and I will go on to the next question. The answers that you give will be kept confidential to the maximum extent allowable under federal, state, and local law. We are offering you [$50] in appreciation for your time and effort answering our questions.

A portion of this interview may be recorded for quality control purposes.

To help us protect your privacy, we have obtained a Certificate of Confidentiality from the National Institutes of Health. The Confidentiality Certificate adds special protection for research information that identifies you. With this Certificate, the researchers cannot be forced, even under a court order or subpoena, to release information that could identify you. You should know, however, that researchers may provide information to appropriate individuals or agencies if harm to you, harm to others, or child abuse becomes a concern. In addition, the agency funding this research – the National Institute of Child Health and Human Development – may see your information if it audits us. They cannot report anything that will harm you, and they too are bound to protect your privacy.

You should understand that a Certificate of Confidentiality does not prevent you from voluntarily releasing information about yourself or your involvement in this research. If an insurer, employer, or other person obtains your written consent to receive research information, then the researchers may not use the Certificate to withhold that information
